

Training Web Platform - Doctum

What is Doctum?

Doctum is a system of extensive training designed to enhance the knowledge and skills of employees in both the farm and food packaging industries. Doctum offers a variety of learning materials to fit different learning styles. Lessons can be in the form of videos, interactive modules, and PowerPoint presentations, among others. This system has several unique features that make it very easy to use.

Developed Features

Quick Training Sessions

One of Doctum's key features is its ability to create training sessions in just two clicks. By opening one of the courses and selecting the desired language, the user automatically starts a training session. Additionally, if the session is not completed, the system saves it so the participant can continue the next time where they left off.

Developed Features

Playlists

Another great feature of Doctum is its ability to create customized playlists. If the default courses are not enough, users can create their own playlist and customize it according to their needs. They can then choose to share the playlist with other divisions or keep it private for their exclusive use.

Participant Management

Doctum also has a section dedicated to participant management. Users can create, edit, transfer to other divisions, archive, and assign courses to participants, making it easy to track and verify the progress of each employee.

Courses Assignment

The system also allows for the assignment of specific courses to participants to verify if they have completed the necessary courses. If the courses have not been completed, the participant can continue their training.

Training Session Reports

Another advantage of Doctum is its ability to generate training session reports. Users can see how many training sessions and participants they had in the month during the periods they choose, and they can also download reports by participant or training session to generate completion certificates.

User Profiles

Doctum also allows for the creation of user profiles for different roles, such as administrators, division trainers, and self-trained users. Self-trained users have their own username and password and can view courses and self-train without the need for an administrator. Additionally, the system allows for the creation of different divisions within the company, such as the farm, packaging, section 1, etc. This facilitates the tracking and management of courses and participants in different areas of the company.

Extended Course Catalog

At Doctum, we understand that every company has its unique training needs and requirements. That's why we offer a flexible approach to our course offerings. If you have exclusive courses that are specific to your company or you believe that could benefit the entire industry, you can communicate with us to add them to our catalog. Once the courses are added, you have the option to keep them exclusive to your company or share them with others. Our goal is to provide the most comprehensive training solutions to all our clients, and we believe that collaborating with companies to add relevant courses is one way of achieving this.

Even More Features

There are many more features on the platform that allow you to download Excel files for training sessions, printable PDF files for compliance purposes, manage different divisions, and perform various tasks using the training web platform.

Technology and Security

Doctum also offers a secure and reliable platform for companies to manage and monitor their employees' training progress. The system uses modern technologies and frameworks to ensure optimal performance and user experience.

Moreover, Doctum's API development would allow seamless integration with other systems used by companies, making it easier to exchange data and automate processes. This ensures that training data is always up-to-date and accurate, providing valuable insights for both employees and management.

Overall, Doctum is a comprehensive training solution that combines cutting-edge technology, user-friendly interface, and flexible customization options to meet the unique needs of any company.
